Judge Moffitt May Change His Mind Regarding the Last Trial.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

ROANOKER, VA., July 23.—Judge Moffett returned from Floyd county to-day, and says he has not decided as yet whether he will sot aside the verdict in the Hoback case. Hoback and his wife returned to Roanoke to-day.

The jury in the case of Froderick Hoback, charged with the murder a year ago of Curtis Jett, brought in a verdict of involuntary manslaughter, and fixed the prisoner's punishment at twolve months in the county jail. Judge Moffett at once set aside the verdict and ordered that a new trial be entered. The trial, which was the second, lasted one week, and created general interest in the Southwest.

and created general interest in the Southwest.

The tragedy was the result of an elopement of Hoback's sister with Jett, which was frustrated by Fred Hoback. In a fight that followed Hoback's father was badly wounded. Hoback himself was cut simust to death, and Jett was killed by pistor shots fired by Fred Hoback. At the first trial the senior Hoback was acquitted and Fred was given eight years in the penitentiary. An error was cited and a new trial was granted. Fred Hotack testified that he found the snow at his bedroom window trampled a few mornings before the killing, and that the tracks led to the home of Curtis Jett.

Miss Kate Hoback, sister of defendant,
and former fiances of jett, was looked

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

DANVILLE, VA., July 23.—Quite a sensation was created this afternoon in the baggage-room of the Southern Rail-way, as the result of complaint of several police officers of the vile odor issuing from a trunk. There was a strong suspicion that the trunk contained the body of a dead person. The trunk was shipped from Manchester, its destination being Clarlon, but by mistake it was sent to Clover, which caused the delay here. The police authorities appealed to the railway officials to have the trunk opened, but this request was refused, and it was sent on an afternoon train to its original destination. The officials take the view that the odor probably came from some spoiled meat. (By Associated Press.)

He expects an appropriation of $500 from the Council with which to furnish the rooms. The estimate for the furnishings were submitted and the board for the furnishings were submitted and the board of the furnishings were submitted and the board of the furnishing were submitted and the board of the furnishing section of the formula of the furnishing section furnish the rooms. The estimate for the furnishings were submitted and the board approved the same, and formally petitioned the Council for the $800, and asked for immediate action. The board instructed Dr. Levy to move into the new quarters at the earliest possible moment. Under these instructions, the chief health officer will proceed to move at once, possibly to-day, and then 'fix up,' and furnish the offices later, say, in about a month, or after the Council furnishs the money.

Dr. Garcin and Mr. Phillips were sprointed a committee to select and omploy temporarily a stenographer for the chief health officer's office, for service until matters shall be gotten in shape.

Dr. Garcin and Mr. Phillips were appointed a committee to act in conjunction with the chief health officer in drawing up a code of rules for the government of the board and all officers and employes acting under its control in smooth working order were considered and action of some of them was necessarily deterred. It is no holiday job getting the new board and the officering shape, but gratifying progress is being under.

A special meeting will probably be called at an early date to hear and consider reports of committees appointed last sight, and also to receive further reports from the chief health officer.
